

Already the dangers of too few companies owning too many media outlets have become manifest -- didn't take too long, did it?

Sinclair broadcasting is forcing its stations to air a 90 minute propaganda fest against John Kerry. Many, many people, including myself are absolutely furious with the unfairness of this and the complete unresponsiveness of Sinclair.

Please consider this note as more than just a complaint -- I am, for the first time in my life, so angry at Sinclair that I am donating both my time and money to register my outrage.

The public airwaves are supposed to be just that -- public. Companies like Sinclair have absolutely no business using a public commodity when they feel no responsibility to that public.

Sincerely,
Kassandra Sojourner
